BRIEF HISTORY

The Technology Hub Fabbrica Italiana dell'Innovazione rises in the heart of East Naples, within the former Enel Historical Archive complex, once the guardian of the "historical memory" of Italy's electrical industry – an industrial site of great historical and symbolic value for the city. The complex, whose origins date back to the late 19th century, is an important example of industrial archaeology, now reborn as an Internationally Certified Technology Hub and Incubator dedicated to research, training, and innovative entrepreneurship.

The restoration and regeneration project preserved the original layout of the production spaces, reinterpreting them in a contemporary way to welcome innovative companies and advanced technology laboratories. Fabbrica Italiana dell'Innovazione stands as a meeting point between tradition and the future, blending Naples' architectural heritage with the needs of a constantly evolving technological and creative ecosystem.

LOCATION

Fabbrica Italiana dell'Innovazione is located at Via Ponte dei Granili, 32 - Naples, in a strategic position that guarantees easy access from the main transport hubs of the city and the region. Its proximity to the Central Station, Naples International Airport and the main motorways makes the facility easily accessible for both local residents and national and international guests.

Located in an urban area undergoing significant transformation, Fabbrica is an ideal venue for events, training activities and professional meetings, combining centrality, logistical convenience and connection with the innovation ecosystem.
